Item 4 Advisory Business

Description of BradfordCrane Company

Terry Bradford-Crane established BradfordCrane Company in August 2004 and in 2005, BradfordCrane Company became registered as an investment advisor. Ms. Bradford-Crane Company is the sole managing member of BradfordCrane Company and the company currently reports no discretionary or non-discretionary Assets Under Management.

BradfordCrane Company provides financial planning services on topics such as retirement planning, risk management, college savings, cash flow, debt management, work benefits, and estate and incapacity planning.

Financial planning is a comprehensive evaluation of a client's current and future financial state; the process uses currently known variables to predict future cash flows, asset values, and withdrawal plans. The key defining aspect of financial planning is that through the financial planning process, all questions, information, and analysis are considered for the purpose of determining how they affect the financial and personal well-being of the client. Clients purchasing this service will receive a written or an electronic report, providing the client with a detailed, holistic financial "game-plan" designed to achieve his or her stated financial goals and objectives.

In general, the financial plan will address any or all of the following areas of concern. The client and advisor will work together to select the specific areas to cover. These areas may include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Cash and Debt Management: Provide client assistance in development of personal statements of cash flows, balance sheets, and income statements. The financial statements provide an organized way to evaluate assets, liabilities, and degree of financial freedom and flexibility to attain financial goals and objectives. Topics for discussion include (but not limited to) total household income, total household expenses, timing of debt obligations, budgets, emergency fund development, and discussions about the importance of managing cash, assets, and debt as tools to reach for the client's version of financial independence.
- Education Planning: Develop financial action plans to create meaningful, actionable steps toward educational goals. Education Planning at BradfordCrane Company includes, not only determining the amount of assets that may be required to attend a specific learning institution, but also assistance in providing the necessary information to determine if a particular institution provides the curriculum, services, and environment desired. Savings, scholarships, tax credits, transfer of assets, work programs, tuition plans and education savings plans are integrated into a comprehensive course of action for the client's consideration.

- Retirement Planning: The process of determining the income necessary for the client to live their desired lifestyle during their retirement years. No two clients are the same, with respect to their goals, dreams and how they will go about fulfilling their quest for financial independence. This process requires in-depth discussion and evaluation of assets, debts, current income, time until retirement, personal retirement savings, expectations of future incoming assets or expenses, estimation of expenses in retirement, life expectancy, the time value of money, and specific measures to implement a reasonable savings discipline to reach retirement lifestyle goals.
- Risk Management: Is all about managing and mitigating the potential effects of a "loss." Examples of central questions throughout the development of risk management action plans are: "If I lose the use or benefit of "Item A", how will it affect my plans for the future?" or "How will my quality of life, or the lives of my loved ones be affected by the loss of "Item A." Risk management is about attempting to control the threats to our short-, medium-, and long-term financial goals. Some of these threats include stock market declines, the loss of income, the loss of a home due to fire or flood, the untimely death of a primary household income provider, a disability, and the need for care and assistance with daily activities as we age. After a thorough evaluation of the financial health of the client, BradfordCrane Company will work cooperatively with the client to identify areas that could benefit from the protection insurance provides.
- Additional special planning needs specifically requested by clients on a case-by-case basis. For many of the topics listed above it is likely that the client will require the assistance of a Tax, Estate or Long-Term Care Planning professional. Where BradfordCrane Company recognizes the need for such a professional, or additional expert analysis beyond the capabilities of this company, it will promptly advise the client to seek the appropriate financial specialist(s). BradfordCrane Company welcomes the opportunity to work with client's well established, trusted advisors to aid the client in implementing or modifying steps toward their personal vision of financial freedom, flexibility, and independence.

narrow in topic focus. The client establishes financial goals and communicates values and thoughts about money. Clients are required to provide information to help complete analysis of two or fewer financial planning topics for the purpose of providing guidance in a limited financial planning area of concern. Once the client's information is reviewed, the financial planner and client will discuss findings, analysis, and proposed potential changes to their current investment choices, documents, or processes. Clients purchasing this service will receive a written or an electronic report, providing the client with detailed "action plans" to achieve his or her stated financial goals and objectives. Client financial situation, goals, objectives, and investments are not monitored. As a part of comprehensive financial planning or limited planning engagements, services include review of investment accounts and subsequent recommendations on asset allocation and diversification. All Financial Planning and Limited Engagement clients are guided through discovering and establishing their financial goals and communicating values and thoughts about money. Clients are required to provide information to help complete the following areas of analysis, as required by their needs, goals, and objectives: net worth, cash flow, insurance, credit scores/reports, employee benefit, retirement planning, insurance, investments, college planning and estate planning. BradfordCrane Company, LLC

Compensation for Sale of Securities

Neither BradfordCrane Company nor any supervised person working on behalf of BradfordCrane Company accepts compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products, including asset-based sales charges or service fees from the sales of mutual funds. Compensation arrangements with securities or investment product firms that allow for compensation of investment advisors based upon selling securities presents great potential for a conflict of interest. These compensation arrangements give any investment advisor (individual or company) or supervised person incentive to recommend investment products based upon the compensation received, rather than client needs. Clients compensate BradfordCrane Company based upon a client partnership that facilitates: 1) review and prioritization of goals and objectives; 2) development of summaries of current financial situations; and development of planning strategies and recommendations based upon client needs, wants, and risk tolerances. To that end, which places the highest priority on honoring its fiduciary responsibilities, BradfordCrane Company does not accept compensation or "referral fees" from professionals to whom a client may be referred. If a conflict of interest with reference to compensation does arise, our clients will be notified at the time the conflict arises during the planning and recommendation process and in writing.

BradfordCrane Company is not affiliated with any other brokers or agents within the financial services industry. Clients must purchase investment products recommended through brokers or agents of their own choosing.

When implementing an investment recommendation, the client may incur additional fees such as brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by broker-dealers, and other third parties such as custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. Mutual fund and exchange traded funds also charge internal management fees, which are disclosed in a fund's prospectus. Such charges, fees and commissions are exclusive of and in addition to our fee, and we shall not receive any portion of these commissions, fees, and costs.

Item 12 further describes the factors that we consider in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client's transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions).

We do not accept compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products including asset-based sales charges or service fees from the sale of mutual funds.

CCR Section 260.238(j) Disclosure

Please note, lower fees for comparable services may be available from other sources.

Item 6 Performance Based Fees and Side by Side Management

Performance based fees are based on a share of capital gains on or capital appreciation of the assets of a client (such as a client that is a hedge fund or other pooled investment vehicle). BradfordCrane Company and any potential supervised persons do not accept performance-based fees or manage accounts that are charged a performance-based fee in addition to being charged another account fee.

Item 7 Types of Clients

BradfordCrane Company advisory services primarily consist of: 1) comprehensive financial planning; 2) offering investment advisory services through consultations; 3) seminars and guest speaking events on investment related current events and topics of interest; and 4) advice on matters not specifically involving securities to include mentoring and motivational speaking topics that encourage audiences to strive for their own personal version of financial independence. The client base consists of individuals, small business owners, non-profit organizations, investment clubs, and networking organizations. BradfordCrane Company is committed to encouraging individuals increase their financial knowledge, employ financial wisdom, and reach for their financial goals. There is no financial asset minimum requirement for review, consultations, or entering into a comprehensive financial planning client engagement.

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

As a part of comprehensive financial planning, BradfordCrane Company offers advice on equity securities, corporate debt, commercial paper, certificates of deposit, municipal securities, mutual funds, and US government securities. A combination of fundamental, technical, and cyclical analyses is used to evaluate individual securities. The concepts of the Efficient Market Hypothesis (the theory that it is extremely difficult, if not impossible, to "beat the market" because all relevant information about the investment is available and incorporated into the price of the stock on a relatively real time basis) and Modern Portfolio Theory (a theory that addresses individual portfolio risk and expected returns of individual securities) are considered vital in the formulation of client recommendations. As a result, BradfordCrane Company is not an advocate of day trading, but rather investing with the appropriate instrument for the given timeline in a cost-efficient manner.

Analysis Type	Explanation	Risks
Technical Analysis	Searching for and evaluating apparent patterns in historical values of individual security investments and markets, and how they historically responded to changes various economic environments. Patterns may give an indication of price movement extent, direction, and duration in a given market.	Information is readily accessible and the direction, degree and duration of future price movements cannot be determined by using historical data exclusively. While historical patterns may be a helpful component of security analysis, research strongly suggests that historical data and performance of a security in various markets is inherently priced into the security. In addition, there is a propensity to see relevant "patterns" that prove to be random.
Cyclical Analysis	Analysis of changes in prices and economic trends as the seasons change throughout the year. Special attention is given to company valuations and financial health and economic indicators at various points within the business cycle. Macroeconomic conditions, historically, follow an observable pattern that may give an indication of industry performance at points within the expansion/contraction cycle of the economy.	In general, success with this strategy depends upon timing the market... timing the purchase or sale of securities with the business cycle. Unfortunate timing of a cyclical security (valuation is highly correlated to the strength of the economy) during a prolonged recession may lead to reduced portfolio valuations for extended periods of time. Use of cyclical securities exclusively may result in larger than average swings in portfolio values when economic news is released. Many statistical data points and economic indicators signify a change in the overall economy as the change is happening or after the change has already taken place. This analysis is technical in nature and dependent upon the forward pattern of the economy, and the exact timing of future contractions and expansions cannot be predicted. This uncertainty affects investor timelines and security holding periods.

Form ADV Part 2 Client Brochure for
BradfordCrane Company, LLC

Fundamental Analysis	Emphasis is placed on determining the intrinsic value of individual private or public companies or government entities that issue securities. Estimated future earnings, future dividends, interest rates and prospects for future growth, the timing of incoming cash flows and financial health give an indication of what the issued security is worth today. In general, emphasis is on finding companies or issuers that are better than the rest of the market perceives (underpriced) or not as great as the market perceives (overpriced) and buy or sell accordingly. Furthermore, this type of analysis is appropriate for long-term investing in quality companies.	All of the data points for fundamental analysis are readily available to the public. Typically, the current market price company share or yield of a debt instrument has all of the publicly available data and analysis of potential for growth (or failure) priced into the security. For investors that are timing the market for short term gains, it will prove difficult to net profits. Aside from the wide availability of financial data, the nature of company culture, and the specific risks associated with individual companies, fundamental analysis is dependent upon the accuracy of the data available and reported to the public. It is probable that unforeseen restatements of material financial data, changes in product demand, or a rotation in executive leadership will influence the calculated present value of a security. This translates to swings in portfolio values.

Various sources of information are used to gain overall perspective on the appropriate, personalized recommendations for asset allocation and portfolio diversification. Some of these sources include industry publications and research materials prepared by financial industry experts, corporate rating services, foreign and domestic business publications and news sources, and SEC filings and annual reports; this list is not all inclusive.

Rather, these projections represent BradfordCrane Company's best efforts, in conjunction with the client's legal and tax advisors, to provide the client with general guidelines customized to their own specific financial situation.

Recommendations are based upon individual risk tolerance of clients. Investing involves risk: the idea that you may not reach your rate of return goals in accordance with a given timeline, or that you may even lose capital. A client's ability to tolerate loss of capital (mentally and monetarily) is evaluated using in-depth and on-going discussion about objectives, time to reach objectives, priority of objectives, and general thoughts about individual, family, and business spending and saving practices. Investing involves risk that clients should be prepared to bear. Because BradfordCrane Company is also committed to educating clients, the company will help the client discover and respect their tolerance for risk, and how it might evolve as they become more educated and confident in their investing experience. For the novice investor and the expert, BradfordCrane Company will serve as an objective evaluator of the client's risk tolerance and what that means for individual investment returns in the prevailing market, as well as what it may have meant historically.

Material Risks Involved

BradfordCrane Company does not provide investment management services; however, investment recommendations may be made as part of the financial planning service.

All investing strategies we offer involve risk and may result in a loss of your original investment which you should be prepared to bear. Many of these risks apply equally to stocks, bonds, commodities and any other investment or security. Material risks associated with our investment strategies are listed below.

- Market Risk: Market risk involves the possibility that an investment's current market value will fall because of a general market decline, reducing the value of the investment regardless of the operational success of the issuer's operations or its financial condition.
- Strategy Risk: The Adviser's investment strategies and/or investment techniques may not work as intended.
- Small and Medium Cap Company Risk: Securities of companies with small and medium market capitalizations are often more volatile and less liquid than investments in larger companies. Small and medium cap companies may face a greater risk of business failure, which could increase the volatility of the client's portfolio.

Form ADV Part 2 Client Brochure for BradfordCrane Company, LLC

- Turnover Risk: At times, the strategy may have a portfolio turnover rate that is higher than other strategies. A high portfolio turnover would result in correspondingly greater brokerage commission expenses and may result in the distribution of additional capital gains for tax purposes. These factors may negatively affect the account's performance.
- Limited markets: Certain securities may be less liquid (harder to sell or buy) and their prices may at times be more volatile than at other times. Under certain market conditions broker-dealers may be unable to sell or liquidate investments at prices we consider reasonable or favorable, or find buyers at any price.
- Concentration Risk: Certain investment strategies focus on particular asset-classes, industries, sectors, or types of investment. From time to time these strategies may be subject to greater risks of adverse developments in such areas of focus than a strategy that is more broadly diversified across a wider variety of investments.
- Interest Rate Risk: Bond (fixed income) prices generally fall when interest rates rise, and the value may fall below par value or the principal investment. The opposite is also generally true: bond prices generally rise when interest rates fall. In general, fixed income securities with longer maturities are more sensitive to these price changes. Most other investments are also sensitive to the level and direction of interest rates.
- Legal or Legislative Risk: Legislative changes or Court rulings may impact the value of investments, or the securities' claim on the issuer's assets and finances.
- Inflation: Inflation may erode the buying-power of your investment portfolio, even if the dollar value of your investments remains the same.

Risks Associated with Securities

Apart from the general risks outlined above which apply to all types of investments, specific securities may have other risks.

- Commercial Paper is, in most cases, an unsecured promissory note that is issued with a maturity of 270 days or less. Being unsecured the risk to the investor is that the issuer may default.
- Common stocks may go up and down in price quite dramatically, and in the event of an issuer's bankruptcy or restructuring could lose all value. A slower-growth or recessionary economic environment could have an adverse effect on the price of all stocks.

Form ADV Part 2 Client Brochure for

- Corporate Bonds are debt securities to borrow money. Generally, issuers pay investors periodic interest and repay the amount borrowed either periodically during the life of the security and/or at maturity. Alternatively, investors can purchase other debt securities, such as zero-coupon bonds, which do not pay current interest, but rather are priced at a discount from their face values and their values accrete over time to face value at maturity. The market prices of debt securities fluctuate depending on such factors as interest rates, credit quality, and maturity. In general, market prices of debt securities decline when interest rates rise and increase when interest rates fall. The longer the time to a bond's maturity, the greater its interest rate risk.
- Bank Obligations including bonds and certificates of deposit may be vulnerable to setbacks or panics in the banking industry. Banks and other financial institutions are greatly affected by interest rates and may be adversely affected by downturns in the U.S. and foreign economies or changes in banking regulations.
- Municipal Bonds are debt obligations generally issued to obtain funds for various public purposes, including the construction of public facilities. Municipal bonds pay a lower rate of return than most other types of bonds. However, because of a municipal bond's tax-favored status, investors should compare the relative after-tax return to the after-tax return of other bonds, depending on the investor's tax bracket. Investing in municipal bonds carries the same general risks as investing in bonds in general. Those risks include interest rate risk, reinvestment risk, inflation risk, market risk, call or redemption risk, credit risk, and liquidity and valuation risk.
- Options and other derivatives carry many unique risks, including time-sensitivity, and can result in the complete loss of principal. While covered call writing does provide a partial hedge to the stock against which the call is written, the hedge is limited to the amount of cash flow received when writing the option. When selling covered calls, there is a risk the underlying position may be called away at a price lower than the current market price.
- Exchange Traded Funds prices may vary significantly from the Net Asset Value due to market conditions. Certain Exchange Traded Funds may not track underlying benchmarks as expected. ETFs are also subject to the following risks: (i) an ETF's shares may trade at a market price that is above or below their net asset value; (ii) the ETF may employ an investment strategy that utilizes high leverage ratios; or (iii) trading of an ETF's shares may be halted if the listing exchange's officials deem such action appropriate, the shares are de-listed from the exchange, or the activation of market-wide "circuit breakers" (which are tied to large decreases in stock prices) halts stock trading generally. The Adviser has no control over the risks taken by the underlying funds in which clients invest.

- Investment Companies Risk. When a client invests in open end mutual funds or ETFs, the client indirectly bears its proportionate share of any fees and expenses payable directly by those funds. Therefore, the client will incur higher expenses, many of which may be duplicative. In addition, the client's overall portfolio may be affected by losses of an underlying fund and the level of risk arising from the investment practices of an underlying fund (such as the use of derivatives).
